A screenshot of the Google Account creation page. The browser address bar shows "https://accounts.google.com/signup". The page has the Google logo at the top left and a "Sign in" button at the top right. The main heading is "Create your Google Account". Below it, it says "One account is all you need" and "A single username and password gets you into everything Google." There are icons for Google, Gmail, Chrome, YouTube, and other Google services. Below these, it says "Take it all with you" and "Switch between devices, and pick up wherever you left off." On the right side, there is a form with the following fields: "Name" (First and Last), "Choose your username" (with a dropdown menu showing "@gmail.com"), "I prefer to use my current email address" (a link), "Create a password", and "Confirm your password". A blue arrow points from the text in the list above to the "I prefer to use my current email address" link.
